The school year is rapidly winding itself up—and around our throats. And many a student is regretting the fact that his or her knowledge of physics extends little beyond knowing that many a reputation has hinged on an electric light switch.

Despite its being poor taste to be present in the spring, we must observe that love is the best—and at least one must have confidence in it to enjoy it.

The thus-and-so-and-the-so-and-so-as-it-is-the-hell-and-so-and-so type of remark has to me always been one of subtle fascination. Some of the clever girls encountered during the year have said these:

"I struck a happy medium," said the man as he emerged, chuckling, from the stance.

"This means a good deal to me," said the poker player as he scratched the cards.

"You never can tell," said the band leader as he shot the only witness in his crime.

"I fear," said the postage on the student's letter to his father, "that I'm not sticking to facts."

"My end draws near," said the wrestler as his opponent bent him double.

"I'm fed up on this," said the baby as he pointed to his high-chair.

• Middle-Name-of-the-Week: Edward Owen Moe, who not only received the Provo Chamber of Commerce Efficiency Award but seems to have a juicy scholarship at Iowa or some such place.

Going the rounds of the college shacks in this little tale: "Well, if it's any of your business," replied the hen frigidly, "I'm laying in a supply of coal."

"It's All In Fun" Jensen got slightly rabid last week in her trade against PETER Knote Peterson, somewhat misquoting him on the subject of how many is an ideal number of engagements. Oh, well, it doesn't matter. I guess, except that Joe Brickhead said I would like him to do it once more, for the free Marie Emily Peterson is the happier we are.

Must leave now while I hesitate upon why it is the hottest girls always seem to dress the coolest.

Y Gets Painting Of Old S. L. Theatre

"The Salt Lake Theatre on New Year's Eve, 1862" painted by Lee Greene Richards, was recently added to the university art collection, announced R. F. Larsen.

In addition to the Richards portrait of George Ottinger, who painted the first scenery for the theatre and George D. Pyper, director of the theatre, this painting will serve as a nucleus for paintings and relics of the "Cathedral of the Desert." It has been hung temporarily in the faculty room of the Education building.

Last year a memorial collection honoring Mr. Richards was established at B.Y.U.

Room D Carries Student Work

One of the largest and finest student art exhibits ever hung at Brigham Young University is now being shown in Room D. "The work shown this year is stronger and freer in execution than ever before," said professor R. F. Larsen, head of the art department.

"Probably the most outstanding collection of individual work exhibited this year is that of Leola Elliott," said Professor Larsen.

Her work shows a great deal of power and versatility. "It is of a number of mediums, including oil, watercolor, oil, and pieces of other mediums. Miss Elliott, who is from Salt Lake City, is one of the graduating class."

Miss Elliott's work shows a freedom of execution and treatment that is unusual in student work.

Last year Miss Elliott had charge of the designing of scenery and costumes for Professor William F. Hanson's opera "Blood Ring" presented by the B.Y.U. music department.

Other outstanding collections are those of Max Gormer and Farrell Collett.

Other groups are those of Glen Turner, Mrs. Mary J. Taylor, Margaret Johnson, Jay Hamster, and Earl Bascom.

Brigs Win 'Mural Crown'

The Bridgman made a great job of clinching their second straight intra-mural title by walking out with a lot more than their share of the points at the inter-school track meet last Saturday.

John Lewis, student athlete manager, was the hero of the meet. He entered practically every event on the card and was by no means the pole vault and broad jump, which he placed in several other events. Frank Swenson, Viking president, won the century, placed in the pole vault, and would have made none of our variety broad jumpers look sick if he could have hit the take-off board. Ralph Winters looked like a champion 400 star for about 200 yards—Merrell Water looked good in the hurdles until he lost track of which foot to take off with—and "Big Bill" Stevens carried most of the "fading material" in the broad jumping pit in his month.

Commencement exercises for Milled high school graduates were held Sunday evening, with Professor H. R. Suter, chairman of the Brigham Young University Journalism department, giving the address.

M.S.C. Netmen Meet in A.A.U. District Tourney

What could be clasmed as a conference tennis championship tournament was held today and tomorrow in Salt Lake. In reality it is the No. 7 division trials for the national A.A.U. tennis championships, but it is being together all the big shots from both the east and west slopes of the Big Seven.

Young is sending four players. Milt Clark, Fred Fletcher, and Howard Ballard will represent the Y in singles and also team up into two doubles combinations.

The tourney is scheduled to again be a duel between the Utes and the Cougars or more specifically between Booth and Benson for the singles title, and Booth-Pardee and Benson-Coles for the double championship. The boys from the east slope have never appeared to the western talent, and this year promises to be no exception.

Two singles players and two doubles teams will make the trip east for the A.A.U. championships.

Awards Given Stan Watts and Gold-Dust Twins

Everyone who is interested in the sport world of the Y was thrilled last Wednesday when Stan Watts, Jack Christensen, and Charles Cooper received locally awarded.

Stan topped the medal for being the most valuable athlete to the Y, and thoroughly deserved it. He has hampered in game participation this year with a knee injury—and perhaps didn't do quite as much as some of the other boys to win games; but as a student and a "great guy" he can't be best.

Jack and Charles split the scholarship for the most outstanding male athlete—which is nothing new. They have been splitting things ever since they came to Young U.

No football fans will forget their great ball carrier of last fall nor will they forget how evenly they were matched on the field. The boys played guard on the basketball team, and were just as evenly matched there. Yet through their entire career they have remained the best of friends.

A typical remark was made by Jack right after Wednesday's assembly. In an attempt to get something to write about, your editor told him that he was a better broad jumper than Charlie. His answer was something like this: "No I'm not, if he'd've stayed out he could've jumped as far as I do today, but he's a better basketball guard than I am." Anyway, the Y is plenty lucky that the gold-dust twins will be back next year.

and Gordon Christensen, and did their part in planning the Y's parties.

Members of the horse bandy team made their fourth annual trip Tuesday to the U.A.C. Livestock and Horse show in Logan. They were under the leadership of H. H. Grant Vines, associate professor of animal husbandry at BYU, and were guests of the U.S.A.C. Ag Club.
